The circulation of the DAILY NEWS is steadily increasing and on Monday passed the 500 mark by a clear majority of 100. Monday's edition of the paper was exhausted fifteen minutes after the last form was off the press. 600 for a daily in a city the size of Daytona is a very creditable showing and is evidence that the public appreciate our efforts. It shall be our aim to build the circulation to a still higher figure and to accomplish this will make it better and better each day.

FOOLED THE SEARCHERS.

How a Quick Witted Scotchwoman Saved a Fugitive.

John Maxwell, a stout Protestant, who had taken part in the battle of Bull Run, Nov. 28, 1862, successfully defied the many attempts that were made to capture him. Once he had a very narrow shave. The soldiers traced him to Edinburgh and there gave him a chase. Bolting down a close, he dashed into a tavern and explaining his desperate case to the landlady, who looked him into the chest that held the oatmeal. The soldiers then entered and searched the house from top to bottom, but could not find their man. Vowing they knew he was on the premises, they called for drink and sat down to think over the matter. One of them, seated on the box that contained the oatmeal, remarked:

"I wouldn't say but the Whig is in this very list, eh? Guidwife, gie's the key and we'll see."

In no way put about, the landlady went to the door and cried to her girl upstairs:

"Jeanie, rin to the guilman for the key of the list till we see if a Whig can lie in the meal and no be hoasting (coughing) wif."

At this the soldiers burst out laughing, felt there was truth in the guidwife's taunt, drained their cups and departed. Maxwell at last managed to escape to Ireland, where he died.

MACARONI.

One Story of the Origin of the Name and the Dish.

A great many stories are in existence about the origin of the word "macaroni" and the invention of the dish so designated. According to one authority, a drunken chief employed by one of the popes was responsible both for the name and the dish. He was preparing a soufle for the papal soup, and, having taken considerably more than a drop too much, he went on stirring the flour until the soufle was of the consistency of hard tack. The assistant chef, knowing that his holiness was not overpatient about things pertaining to the table, ventured to call the attention of his chief to this fact, and the latter, being a resourceful man, decided to make a "paste" instead of a soufle.

He waited the result with some anxiety and responded to a call to appear before his holiness with considerable perturbation. Visions of a stay in the papal dungeon rose before him, and when the pontiff asked, with a smiling face, for the name of the wonderful paste served in the soup he was too nervous to think of a name. "My enno" (my favorite) he replied at last, and the pontiff, not catching the words exactly, said: "Macaroni? Well, in future never serve me a meal without a dish of macaroni."—Indianapolis Sentinel.
